An escape in the rainy night
Instant d'évasion par une nuit pluvieuse

Zaw, a student from Myanmar in South East Asia, has been writing poems since he was 15 as a way to support his country. Now 23 years old, he likes walking in the city and getting to know the people working in the streets. Then he writes about them to keep track of what he has learnt. This poem is about a father selling on the street at night, thinking of his children waiting for whatever he will be able to bring them.
